About the Creator

Luis Tubens, a.k.a "Logan Lu", was born in Chicago's West Town neighborhood and raised in Logan Square. In 2014, he earned a B.A. in Communications, media and theater from Northeastern Illinois University. Luis has performed poetry across the United States including with the GUILD COMPLEX, Tia Chucha Press, and the National Museum of Mexican Art. He has toured Mexico City in 2016 and 2018 presenting his work at the acclaimed "Show Socrates

MX" (2016) and the National Book Fair of Leon GTO (2018) and featured in Puerto Rico at "Poets Passage" and "Gathering of Cities" at Libros AC (2019). He was the 2017 Artists in Residence at Oak Park Public Library. He has also held workshops for the residents of the Cook County Juvenile Temporary Detention Center and students in the Chicago Public Schools. On stage, he has opened for notable acts including Saul Williams and Calle 13. He represented Chicago in the 2014 and 2018 National Poetry Slam. He is the author of Stone Eagle (2017) published by Bobbin Lace Press, Chicago. Currently, Luis is the resident poet for ESSO Funk (2016 Best New Band and Best International Music Act, Chicago Reader). He also is the writer of "Raices to Roots" a theatrical production that weaves dance, poetry and live music to examine and celebrate the Chicago Puerto Rican diaspora.
